

The Tulane Hullabaloo

New Contributor Contract

You are a representative of The Hullabaloo and agree to conduct yourself in the proper manner including the following:

- Maintaining formal and respectful communication with sources promptly
- Wearing professional attire to interviews, meetings, etc.
- Reporting any/all problems and questions to your section editor
- Adhering to ethical standards and policies outlined on The Hullabaloo's website and during training

The Hullabaloo retains first-use and perpetual use to any materials (photos, interviews, articles, etc.) you create or obtain while working for The Hullabaloo.

- Do not post any of these materials to social media until after The Hullabaloo publishes the relevant material on its website and, if applicable, in print

The frequency of your contributions are up to you. To obtain the title of Staff Position, however, you must contribute to The Hullabaloo for three consecutive weeks. If you contribute to different sections, it is your responsibility to inform the section editor when you obtain Staff Position status.

By signing this, you certify that you have attended the appropriate training sessions, will follow the guidelines listed above and will work to uphold the credibility of The Hullabaloo.
